

Abstract

Siamsongsermkarnkeha Company runs the business about house built with formwork system. Due to the research, we found that the construction process has more complicated in management than in theory. Engineers should recognize both in the construction methods and in the construction techniques. The construction management is essential in the monitoring process, so it should be planned since beginning. Otherwise it might be caused delay and damage into the project. Most of problems that we encountered are the limitation of workers and lack of fully supplied equipment.

According to the study, we summarized that engineers who have enough engineering knowledge and technique will be able to adjust the problems substantially; moreover using experienced technicians will also reduce the side effects happened into the project.
